What is Darbepoetin Alfa Injection?

Darbepoetin Alfa Injection is used to treat Anemia (low red blood cell count) in persons who have chronic kidney disease or who are undergoing chemotherapy for certain forms of cancer (cancer that does not involve the bone marrow or blood cells). Darbepoetin alfa also aids in the reduction of blood transfusions. It works by inducing the production of extra red blood cells in the bone marrow. This drug is extremely similar to the natural component in your body that prevents anemia (erythropoietin).

How to use Darbepoetin Alfa

- As instructed by your doctor, this drug is administered as an injection under the skin or into a vein. This drug should be injected into a vein for hemodialysis patients.
- This medication should not be shaken or mixed with other medications or IV solutions.
- If you're injecting this drug under the skin, wipe the injection site with rubbing alcohol before each dose. To reduce harm beneath the skin, change the injection site every time.

- To receive the best benefit from this drug, take it on a daily basis. Use it on the same day of the week as directed to help you remember.
- It could take anywhere from 2 to 6 weeks for your red blood cell count to rise.

How It Works

The erythropoiesis-stimulating agent darbepoetin alfa (ESA). It works by promoting the production of red blood cells in the bone marrow (soft tissue inside the bones that creates them).
