Product Description :

What is Kemocarb Injection?

The kemocarb injection is used to treat ovarian cancer and small cell lung cancer. Its effectiveness is demonstrated by the fact that it stops or slows the proliferation of cancer cells.

Kemocarb Injection - Benefits

Medicinal Advantages,

- Kemocarb Injection is made up of Carboplatin an anti-cancer drug that is used to cure ovarian cancer and small cell lung cancer. It acts by destroying the cancer cells' genetic material (DNA), halting their growth and proliferation. It can be used alone or in conjunction with other medications depending on the type of cancer.

User Direction for Kemocarb,

- Kemocarb Injection is prescribed by doctors who are familiar with the administration of cancer drugs. It's given to you as an injection into your vein by a healthcare expert (intravenously, or IV).

- Kemocarb Injection should not be self-administered. Carboplatin dosage is determined by a number of factors, including your height and weight, general health or other health issues, and how your body reacts to it.
- You should follow your doctor's instructions. It can have potentially dangerous negative effects if taken incorrectly or in excess. You may not notice or feel the benefits for several weeks or months, but do not avoid taking it.

Kemocarb Injection - Precautions

Consult your doctor if you are,

- You are allergic to any of the medicine's ingredients
- Have a renal disease
- Have a lower number of blood cells than usual
- Have a bleeder of a tumour
- If you're planning to get vaccinated against yellow fever.
- Seizures, altered mental functioning, and unusual vision
- With haemolytic anaemia, you may have excessive weariness and shortness of breath, either alone or in combination with a low platelet count, thrombocytopenia, and kidney dysfunction, in which you pass little or no urine.
- Before taking this prescription, consult your doctor if you are pregnant, breastfeeding, think you might be pregnant or plan to have a baby.
- If you have any side effects that may impair your ability to drive or operate machines, such as nausea, vomiting, deteriorating eyesight, or changes in your vision or hearing, do not drive or operate machines.

Side Effects of Kemocarb Injections

The majorities of side effects are minor and will go away as your body adapts to the medication. If they don't go away or you're concerned about them, consult your doctor.

- Nausea, vomiting, exhaustion, and a rise in liver enzymes are some of the medication's most prevalent side effects. This prescription may lower the number of blood cells in your blood (red blood and white blood cells), making you more susceptible to infections and bleeding.
- Blood tests are performed on a regular basis to examine your blood cells, as well as your heart, liver, and blood uric acid levels.
- If you have an allergic reaction to an injection, such as a rash, itching, or difficulty breathing, you should tell your doctor. Many other medicines can interact with or be impacted by this one, so tell your doctor about all of your medications.
- This medication should not be used during pregnancy or breastfeeding. It is essential for both males and females to practice effective contraception during treatment to avoid conception.

Some Tips for Kemocarb Injection

- During carboplatin treatment and, if necessary, until recovery, peripheral blood levels should be checked routinely.
- Kemocarb Injection should only be used under the direction of a doctor. While you're on Kemocarb Injection, your doctor will keep an eye on you.
- Routine blood tests may be ordered by your doctor to evaluate your liver function, electrolyte levels, and blood cell count.
- Wear protective clothing, sunglasses, and sunscreen to prevent unnecessary or prolonged sunlight exposure and UV rays (such as tanning booths). Kemocarb Injection
