What is Daunomycin Injection?

Daunomycin injection is a chemotherapeutic medication that is used to treat a specific kind of acute myeloid leukaemia (AML; a type of cancer of the white blood cells). A form of acute lymphocytic leukaemia is treated with Daunomycin in combination with other chemotherapy medicines (ALL; a type of cancer of the white blood cells). Daunomycin belongs to the anthracycline class of drugs. It works by reducing or preventing cancer cell development in the body.

Daunomycin Injection Use

Daunomycin injection is available as a liquid solution or as a powder that must be mixed with liquid before being injected intravenously (into a vein) by a doctor in a clinic or hospital alongside other chemotherapy drugs. Daunomycin is normally given once a day on specific days during your treatment term to treat AML. When treating AML, Daunomycin injection is commonly given once a week. Treatment duration is determined by the drugs you are receiving, how well your body reacts to them, and the form of cancer you have.
