What is Mupirocin Cream?

Mupirocin cream is an antibiotic that is used in the treatment of impetigo and other bacterial skin diseases. It doesn't work against fungus or viral infections.

How To Use

- Mupirocin is administered to the skin as a cream or a lotion. Mupirocin is typically used 3 times a day for one to two weeks. Carefully follow the advice on your medication label.
- After properly cleaning the affected region, apply a tiny amount (a thin film) of the cream. A sterile gauze bandage can be used to cover the wound.
- Avoid getting mupirocin in your eyes.

Precautions for Mupirocin Cream

- If you have allergies to mupirocin cream or any other medications, inform your doctor.
- Tell your doctor about all of your prescription and OTC medications, notably chloramphenicol.

- If you have a pregnancy, planning to become pregnant, or are breastfeeding, notifies your doctor.

How Mupirocin Works

Mupirocin is a type of antibiotic that can be used to treat a variety of infections. It kills germs that can produce skin infections by blocking the production of essential proteins that bacteria need to survive. As a result, the skin infection does not spread.

Side Effects of Mupirocin Cream

The majorities of side effects are minor and will go away as your body adapts to the medication. If they don't go away or you're concerned about them, see your doctor.

- Slight burning or stinging may occur after using this drug, though this is unusual. Prevent using Mupirocin Cream and tell your doctor immediately if you have extreme burning, stinging, or irritation.
- Due to a bug called C. difficile, this medicine may induce severe intestinal disease in certain people. This condition can develop during medication or weeks or months after it has ended.
- The use of this cream for an extended period of time or on a regular basis may result in a new fungus or yeast infection on the skin. If you detect an indication of a new infection, or if your present infection does not improve or worsen, call your doctor immediately.

Some Tips for using Mupirocin

- Mupirocin cream is a bacterial skin infection treatment that is used to treat impetigo.
- Thoroughly clean the afflicted region before applying the medication three times a day. If necessary, a dressing can be given to the treated region.
- It's best not to get it in your eyes, mouth, or nose. If you get it in these places by accident, rinse with cold water.
- It has the potential to produce minor discomfort at the site of application. If the irritation persists, contact your doctor.

- Use for no more than ten days. Any leftover cream should be thrown away.
- Consult your doctor if your skin disease does not improve in 3 to 5 days.
